

This proposal to limit "local" content is similar to the absolute disaster that restricts Satellite television users from receiving content they want (and often cannot receive in any other form). As a full fee paid service, customers should be able to receive any content that Satellite providers deem incented to carry due to competitive or other market reasons. "Local"-only rules that restrict content to channels that are most often owned by a national media corporation are against the public interest and only serve to restrict competition